Series of Articles

By T. Edwin Smith.

You will notice that the hardest work and the things that require the most time in the other mine, in this mine are done by machinery. The picking-out the hoisting and the loading are here done by steam or compressed air yet the coal costs more. One firm who run their own retail yards claim that it costs them $3.40 to load a ton on the cars. A year or two ago when this company was just starting in and mined their coal by hand they loaded coal in their patrons wagons for $3.00.

I can not believe it costs even three dollars per ton to load this coal on the track. For the purpose of securing accurate first hand information I went to Lethbridge last winter and secured work as a loader as the men are called who load the blasted coal on the cars. I worked there three weeks and saw every part of the mine. I questioned every body who could tell me any thing, and besides spent considerable time in the office as a result of my calculation, I should judge that it costs $1.10 per ton to load the coal on the cars. At these figures I allow for office help, depreciation of the plant and wear of the cables.

I can not believe that it costs more to mine coal when machinery is substituted for man power. It does not stand to reason that the proprietors would have substituted all this machinery, would have gone to all this expence if it could have been done more cheaply by hand. A man can mine coal by hand for $1.00 per ton. I worked in the Carbon mine last winter immediately after I left Lethbridge. There the miner did every thing except putting the coal in the farmers wagon. They were paid $1.00 and at this price they furnished their own powder fuse oil lamps did their own timbering and laid their own track. The only expence that the company was put to in this connection was to provide tools and track.

There is one mine in the central part of Alberta that loads coal in the customers wagons for $2.25 per ton, and one other mine near, doing a purely local business that sells their product for $1.00.

The Kidneys Wear Out

But Many People of Advanced Years Have Learned How to Keep These Organs Healthy by Using

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

The kidneys are often the first organs of the body to come into derangement of the kidneys. Their work of filtering the blood is greatly increased by excessive eating or by use of highly seasoned foods and alcoholic drinks.

As advanced age comes on most people suffer more or less from derangements of the kidneys. With some there are years of pain and aches, with others bright disease is soon developed and the end comes quickly.

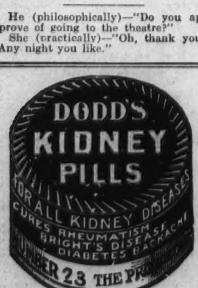

Fortunately a great many have learned about Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills, and are enabled by their use to keep the kidneys healthy and active.

This medicine is entirely different from ordinary kidney treatments, and invigorates the action of the liver and bowels, with other bright disease is soon developed and the end comes quickly.

Mr. Richard Preston, Osborne, Lambton County, Ont., writes: "I want to testify to the wonderful curative properties of Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills. Seventeen years ago I began the use of this medicine, when my back was so bad that to stoop or rise was torture to me. The kidneys were in bad condition, but these pills entirely freed me of back pains. I have used them ever since, whenever the kidneys would get out of order, and now, at eighty years, am well and hearty, thanks to this grand medicine."

Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

He (philosophically)—"Do you approve of going to the theatre?" She (frantically)—"Oh, thank you any night you like."

ODDITIES OF NAMING.

Process by Which Things Receive Their Designations.

Besides port and sherry, other wines indicate the districts or countries from which they are obtained by their names: madeira, champagne, moselle, and the town of Cognac, in France, is inseparably connected with good brandy. It may not be so generally known that the word "grog" was derived from the nickname of Admiral Vernon, who introduced the use of rum to the navy, and who was called "Old Grog" from the program breeches that he wore.

Another textile derived from the name of a place is calico, from Calicut, in India; and the province of Ulster has given its name to the long overcoat with a cape which in vogue a few years ago; while millinery is generally supposed to be derived from "Milaner," a trader in Milan goods. Wellington and Blucher boots obtain their names from the two famous generals who took so prominent a part in the Battle of Waterloo, and Hessian and Balmoral boots were named after places. Names of vehicles which originated from the names of persons are hansom, after its inventor, Joseph Aloysius Hansom; brought about Lord Dunsany's name, and Victoria, after her late Majesty, Queen Victoria. The name of Charles Mackintosh is preserved in the waterproof coat invented by him, and of John Louden MacLellan in the word mackintosh, the putty of mending of road by rolling in broken fragments of granite or other stones, which he invented.

Current takes its name from Corinth, from the neighborhood of which the dried grass is exported; cayenne pepper from the province of Cayenne, in French Guiana; peach is the name of the fruit of the peach tree, from the province of Damascene or Damascus plum, but the so-called Jerusalem artichoke has no connection with the capital of Palestine, being a corruption of the Italian granchio (sun-row), a plant which it much resembles in growth.

Kidderminster, Axminster, Turkey and Brussels give their names to special kinds of carpets, and the last-named to Brussels sprouts; Gruyere, Cheddar, Stilton, to special kinds of cheese; Manila and Havana, to well-known brands of cigars; while Cochinchina and Guinea are represented in the names of farinnyard fowls, and the latter also in the now obsolete coin at one time minted from Guinea gold.

Personal names given to roses and other flowers, and plants to peas, apples, and other fruits, to names of towns, rivers, mountains, and other geographical features are numerous to mention. Among names of countries and states the following, however, are worthy of notice: America, after Amerigo Vesputi, who did not discover America; Columbia, after Christopher Columbus, who did; Victoria and Queensland, after her late Majesty Queen Victoria, and amongst the latest creations Rhodesia after the late Cecil Rhodes.

Prints Own Dictionary.

Mr. Edward Dwyell, of Herne Bay, better known by his pen-name of E. W. Macdonald, is now completing the self-imposed task of compiling, printing and publishing a Gaelic dictionary of the Gaelic language.

To extend his knowledge of Gaelic he joined various Scottish regiments, and for the last four years he has been working at the production of "Faelaid Gaidhlig," in monthly parts. Unable to afford the expense of a dictionary in the ordinary way he decided to print the work himself. He taught himself the art, and after compiling a list of a million words giving their meanings and local variations, and drawing a thousand illustrations, he turned to composing, plate-casting, printing, trimming and binding, finally posting the parts to subscribers. Next year he hopes to have the work completed. Mr. Macdonald has been cheered and helped in his efforts by the grant of a civil list pension of £200 early this year. Mr. Macdonald is a Welshman and speaks Welsh fluently as well as Scotch Gaelic. The work will be completed in three volumes.

An Ancient "Frickaise."

A manuscript cookbook of the year 1254 contains the recipe for "a frickaise." "Take for frick, cut them in pieces and clean them season with pepper & salt a little mass nature covers some parsley. A little bit of onion. Let them lay 2 hours then pour them very well fry sweet butter & make ye butter hot before you put them in. Fry a fine brown. With ye pan & put them in a gain with a pint of gravy. Let them swimmer in ye gravy. Take the yolks of 3 eggs with a little grain mustard & a little yucca of lemon & 2 spoonfuls of wine. Shake it over the fire till it is as thick as cream, pour over ye frickaise and so serve it to ye table hot."

Montreal Woman Cured of Stubborn, Itching Eczema

Every skin sufferer should read what Miss Mary A. Bentley, 93 University St., Montreal, writes of her seven years of eczema, how she could not sleep or put her hands in water, how she tried all manner of treatment and even a hospital, but grew worse, and how she found prompt relief and final cure in Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment.

"Some nine years ago I noticed small pimples breaking out on the back of my hands. They became very irritating, and it was just the same. I was told that it was a very bad case of eczema. Well, I just kept on using everything that I could for nearly eight years, until I was advised to try Cuticura Ointment. I did so and I found after a few applications and by bandaging my hands well until the burning sensations were disappearing. I could sleep well, and did not have any itching during the night. I began after a while to use Cuticura Soap for washing them, and I think by using the Cuticura Soap and Ointment I was much benefited."

"I stuck to the Cuticura treatment, and thought if I could use other remedies for over seven years with no result, and after only having a few applications and finding a cure in Cuticura Ointment, I thought it deserved a fair trial with a severe and stubborn case. I used the Cuticura Ointment and Soap for nearly six months and I am glad to say that I have hands as clear as anyone. I honestly believe if all sufferers of eczema would just stop paying doctors' bills and treat themselves with the Cuticura Remedies, they would not regret it."

"It is my wish that you publish this letter to all the world, and if anyone doubts it, let them write me."

(Signed) MISS MARY A. BENTLEY, 93 University St., Montreal, Sept. 14, 1910.

Though Disappointing, It Has a Happy Result

The old Kimball house stood alone on the side of the hill. Around it the acres that one generation had cleared and two others had profitably tilled during the golden age of New England agriculture were growing up to birch and white pine. But the hilltop pasture still furnished grazing for hets, the aged Holstein, and Jael, the pot-bellied mare, sole survivors of the stock that once crowded the white-washed barn, while the garden grew potatoes, corn, turnips, beans and the other hardy truck that wintered in a corner of the big cellar and enabled the Kimball "girls" to sit by their air-tight stove and watch with unconcern the storms that blocked the roads and sometimes shut them off from the store at the Center for days at a time.

Breakfast over and the dishes washed, the sisters went into the garden. Every pleasant day until the sun rose high and hot they would there. Blue cotton gowns faded by constant washing covered their thin, bowed figures as they stooped over the onion bed or with the hand cultivator scratched the earth between the hills of beans and corn. Blue gingham sunbonnets protected their delicately wrinkled faces. Miss Binley, seeing them for the first time, paused to study and admire. Against the background of yellow green cornstalks their bent figures stood out in barnyard relief. In the foreground the whitewashed fence, the prim flower beds and the old house with its rotting shingles and weather-washed green blinds contributed a setting that appealed irresistibly to her artist soul.

For Miss Binley was an amateur photographer. She seldom walked abroad without her camera, but unfortunately this was one of the rare mornings when she had left her camera at home.

"Oh, Mr. Holbrook," cried the girl regretfully, "see how perfectly dear old women in that onion patch. What a queer study! I've often said it never was safe to go anywhere without a camera."

"I might run back and fetch it," suggested the carrier meekly.

"No," she replied reluctantly. "It's too far. Probably we can get them some other time. I'm going to speak to them."

Young Holbrook watched with adoring admiration the process by which the girl penetrated the barriers of New England reserve. Before the three women had conversed five minutes something of Miss Binley's own abundant youth and enthusiasm began to sparkle in the faded eyes of the sisters.

"Oh, Martha, don't you wish we could have ours taken again? We haven't had our likenesses made since we were girls. Remember, Martha, you were thirty and I was thirty-five. You were a mighty pretty girl in those days, Martha."

"Oh, g'one," commanded her younger sister.

"It used to be a terrible lot of trouble," continued Phoebe. "We had to sit patiently still for five minutes—couldn't stir, and it seemed like five hours."

"You wouldn't have to sit still at all now," said Miss Binley eagerly. "The process is instantaneous."

Eager assent was on the lips of Miss Phoebe, but her sterner sister forestalled her.

"That's very kind of you, miss, but we couldn't think of putting you to so much trouble."

Familiar with the fundamental characteristic of the older New England generation, Miss Binley advanced cautiously. Already in her artist mind she saw the print she would make—a marvelous study of two quaint figures wringing an unworldly face from a harsh mountain soil. It was the subject she had been looking for all summer to enter in the fall exhibit of her camera club at home. "Oh, it won't trouble me in the least," she replied guardedly. "If you knew how I love to take pictures you would understand. Would you be kind to go in the garden at this time tomorrow?"

"Yes," answered Martha, yielding. "But wouldn't you rather take us in the house. Do folks ever have their pictures taken outdoors?"

"The light is much better outside," explained Miss Binley. "And besides, I wouldn't think of keeping you from your work. I'll come and take some snapshots of you just as you are—wearing the onions."

"You can come with me tomorrow," she said to Holbrook. "I had promised to drive with Johnny Laron, but all circumstances are off in the face of an epoch making chance like this." The next morning bright weather perfect alike for pedestrianism and photography. The day was cool, and the thin haze tempered the rays of the mountain sun. Miss Binley ran down the steps to meet him, radiant with anticipation, and as he received the big camera from her hands Holbrook thrilled with the thought of another morning at her side.

"There's some one in the garden," said the young man as the last turn in the road brought them in sight of their destination. "But they don't accord with my recollection of the old ladies. Holy smoke!" gasped the youth. "It's they, all right, but no wonder we didn't recognize them."

Miss Binley gazed, speechless in horrified amazement, as her two subjects approached the gate. Gone were the picturesque gowns and the sunbonnets of faded blue. In their place the Kimballs had donned a veritable riot of modishness. Their costumes paid tribute to the varying fashions of a full half century.

But the faded countenances of the Kimballs showed naught but pride and satisfaction, slightly tinged with embarrassment. "We set up most all things over the hill," declared the what to wear," announced Miss Phoebe when they came within speaking distance. "Of course we wanted to be seen, but we didn't want to be kind. These silk mitts cost a sight of money when Brother Hiram brought them from Concord. They're pretty well darned now, but all the modish on the inside where it don't show. Don't Martha look scrumptious?" She found that silk skirt she had made up for the Frost wedding's most as good as new."

Holbrook welcomed the old lady's volubility, for it was plain that for once his companion was at a loss for words. When Miss Binley finally found her voice it was no queer and strained that he scarcely recognized it: "I'm sorry you went to all the trouble. Really, it wasn't at all necessary. In fact—"

"In fact," broke in Holbrook hurriedly—"nevertheless it was awfully good of you to try up so. That certainly is a fine piece of goods, Miss Martha. It will show up splendidly in the photograph."

He remained on this, hardly realizing what he said, anxious only to cover the bitter disappointment that was written on Miss Binley's face so clearly that he felt it must be evident to all.

"'Twasn't the least bit of trouble," insisted Martha. "We really enjoyed that things over, didn't we, Phoebe?" Holbrook was wondering how long his powers of invention would stand the strain when, after a brief and to him uncomfortable pause, Miss Martha suggested timidly, "We're all ready, miss, any time you say."

To Holbrook's intense relief this appeal brought Miss Binley to a sense of the situation. "Oh, yes," she said rather wildly, "your clothes are beautiful. I'm going to send you each a dozen prints so that you can have plenty give your friends."

Declining a hospitable invitation to stop for a "snack and a cup of tea," the girl and the young man somehow got through their farewells and waited away over the hill, leaving the worried but thoroughly delighted old ladies gazing after them from their station by the front gate. In silence Holbrook hugged the camera, and without a word Miss Binley trudged beside him until the old house and its grotesquely clad occupants were hidden by the bend in the road. Then the girl said:

"Would you mind sitting here in the shade a minute? I really believe I'm a bit tired."

Immediately the youth was all anxious inquiry and suggestion: "It must have been the sun. You have to be careful in these mountains. If you don't mind waiting here alone for a couple of minutes I'll hurry back and see if the old ladies won't send me some kind of a rig to drive you back to the house or one you'll let me carry you back to their house."

"Don't be ridiculous," ordered Miss Binley, with a slightly hysterical laugh. "There isn't a word of the matter with me. Then, noting his amazement, she burst out desperately: "I'm just fearfully disappointed, that's all. I don't believe I ever was so disappointed before in my life. But that's only part. I'm horribly ashamed of myself, too—seven more assumed than disappointed. Oh, I believe I'm the meanest girl in the whole state of New Hampshire."

"Why—er—er?" he started to protest.

"Don't pretend you don't comprehend," she interrupted. "You're ashamed of me too. You know you are. No; let me finish," she insisted, when he made as if to deny. "The worst of all is that even now, when I understand how mean and selfish it is to feel so, I'm just overwhelmed with disappointment still. You can't understand—nobody could but an artist. My heart was set on a picture of those dear old things in their delicious working clothes. And when I saw how they had gone and spoiled everything

I felt so badly I didn't even want to conceal it."

Holbrook gazed with awe and quickening heart at a new and bolder divinity—with quivering lips and dewy lashes, irresistible in her sweet repentance. In another moment he was on his knees on the grass beside her. Without hesitation, naturally as if he had done it as often as he had dreamed of doing it, his arm slipped about her. Just as naturally her head somehow found a comfortable place on his shoulder. Her hat fell off, and he kissed her shining hair.

"I do understand," he whispered, although there was none but the mountains to listen. "I understand, dear. I may be an ignorant about photography and art, but I'm mighty well acquainted with Tommy Holbrook, and I know he knows that you're the sweetest, most unselfish, most—What I want to say is that I want to make carrying your camera my life job," he concluded desperately.

Miss Binley sat suddenly erect. An answer hovered on her lips, but faded into a smile as she picked up the black leather covered object from the grass beside her and placed it in Holbrook's hands.

A Remarkable Show.

A shower of a remarkable character occurred in Miley on April 24, 1741. On the morning of that day every exposed piece within an extensive district was found covered with a gray water, which being evaporated left a deposit of an extraordinary thickness. It was determined that this solid matter must have come from Mount Ithia.

Going to Extremes

Jones had lately taken to lecturing on the tectonic platform. "So you want to marry my daughter, sir? What are your principles? Are you temperate?" he asked of a candidate for the position of son-in-law. "Temperate!" was the reply. "Why, I am so strict that it gives me pain even to find my boots tight!"

The Practical Miss

"Ah, fly with me," the aviator cried. "To some far distant and more genial clime." The maiden hung her head and softly sighed. "This is so sudden; give me time. What is the income that I'd have to share?" "I can't exactly dress and live on air!"

Chapped Hands AND Cold Sores

Are your hands chapped, cracked or sore? Have you "cold cracks" which open and bleed when the skin is drawn tight? Have you a cold sore, frost bite, chilblain, or a "free" place, which at times makes it agony for you to go about your household duties? If so, Zam-Buk will give you relief, and will heal the frost-damaged skin. Anoint the sore places at night, Zam-Buk's rich healing essence will sink into the wounds, and the smarting, and will heal quickly.

Mrs. Yellen, of Portland, says: "My hands were so sore and cracked that it was agony to put them near water. When I did so they would smart and burn as if I had scalded them. I soon found quite unable to get relief from anything I put on them until I tried Zam-Buk, and it succeeded when all else had failed. It closed the big cracks, gave me ease, soothed the inflammation, and in a very short time healed my hands."

Zam-Buk also cures chaps, rashes, vesicles, eczema, piles, hemorrhoids, itching sores, nose bleeds, skin eruptions, pimples, freckles, and all skin troubles. It is a sure cure for all skin troubles. It is a very short time healed my hands."

She Understood
Foreigners sometimes have a hard time of it wrestling with the English language and, if they persist in thinking that they know it all, they usually "make a mess of it."
For example, a young Frenchman went into a newspaper office the other day to have an advertisement printed. She presented the slip of paper to the clerk at the counter, who received it with his best smile, and the young woman was very pretty. And reading with great deference suggested that it was a little bit obscure; that the phraseology had better be changed a trifle, and politely handed the slip to her. At this, however, she was quite indignant, remarking that she understood "so English well enough."

"All right, mademoiselle," answered the clerk, "it shall be printed exactly as you have written it."

And it was. Here is what happened the next morning.

"Notice—Mlle. Marcotte, a native of Paris, offers her services to young ladies and would be pleased to show them her tongue."

She wanted to teach young ladies how to speak the French language. Exchange.

Where Silence Reigned
One morning shortly after the honeymoon, the determined wife took her seat at the breakfast table and placed a large revolver by the side of her plate. "Why—why, my dear," stammered the astonished husband, "what does that mean?"

"Means my love," was her stern reply, "that we have bread of my own making for breakfast, and that no adverse criticism will be tolerated."

Sydney Smith one day saw a little girl sit down and stroke the shell of a turtle.

"Why are you doing that, Belle?" he asked.
"To please the turtle."
"My child, you might as well stroke the dome of St. Paul's or the dean and chapter!" said the wit.

IMPOVERISHED BLOOD

A Common and Dangerous Trouble.—You Must Enrich the Blood to Escape Danger

Anemia is simply a lack of blood. It is one of the most common and at the same time the most dangerous of diseases with which growing girls suffer.

It is common because the blood so easily becomes impoverished and, in development, when girls are too frequently allowed to over-study, over-exercise, and suffer from a lack of exercise. It is dangerous because of the stealthiness of its approach, often being well developed before it is recognized, and because of its tendency to grow so steadily worse if not promptly checked, that it may run into consumption.

The value of the tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills should be known to every mother in the land. These Pills make new, rich blood, tone the organs and restore a glow of health to pale, ailing cheeks, and drive away the weakness, headaches, faintness, heart palpitation and loss of energy so noticeable in young girls who are suffering from anemia. To all such Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are an actual life-giver. Miss Melba McFarlane, Prince Albert, Sask., says: "In my case I can only say that life had lost its meaning. I was a trial, and even pleasure only a task. When I went up a flight of stairs I was ready to begin to think that life would be a continued burden. But all this was changed, thanks to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These were recommended to me, and after taking them for about a month I found my health renewed. I could sleep better, my appetite returned, and I was so strong and well that house work was no longer a burden to me. My sister seemed to be going the same way last summer and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were at once sent for, and two boxes made her as well as ever. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are now the prized medicine in our home, and doctor bills have been fewer since we discovered the virtues of this great medicine."

Sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Was Battered With Worms
Harry Lauder reveals in a Scotch story he picked up in America about a tenacious lecturer who uses every illustration a glass of water, a glass of whisky, and a box of live worms. He would drop a worm into the water and show how it wriggled. Then, dropping it into the whisky, he would say:

"There! One convulsive shudder and it is all over."
"Haud on, there, maulster! Are you sure 'tis the liquor killed the pair worm?" a voice in the audience asked.

"Quite sure, my friend," replied the lecturer. "No doubt whatever."
"A weel, then, just pass over the whisky!" I'm bothered with worms."

Jones—"Why is it that it is usually unmarried women who write articles on 'How to manage a husband?'"
Brown—"Oh! you don't suppose a married woman is going to give her little plan away do you?"

Came to Raise the Wind

That was a facetious bishop who went to preach a charity sermon a short time ago in a northern diocese. The vicar being ill, a curate received him, and, thinking to say something pretty, observed:

"I am grieved that you should have to come on such a windy day."
But the youth found his grief misplaced when he of the lawn sleeves replied:

"Tut, tut, boy! Didn't I come to raise the wind?"

The Gloomy Broker

Mayor Reburn, of Philadelphia, told at a recent Republican banquet a story about hard times.

"There," he was a broker," he said, "whom our last panic hit very hard. As the broker walked by his train one evening in the corridor of Broad Street station, a friend approached and said:

"Well, did you have a good day to-day?"
"The poor broker frowned."
"Rotten," he replied. "Everything I sold went up. Everything I bought went down. Thank goodness," he added, "none of those things can go sideways."

"Did Tom have any luck hunting tigers in India?" "Yes; great luck." "How?" "He didn't meet any tigers."

It is a Liver Pill.—Many of the ailments that man has to contend with have their origin in a disordered liver, which is a delicate organ, peculiarly susceptible to the disturbances that come from irregular habits or lack of care in eating and drinking. This accounts for the great many liver regulars now pressed on the attention of sufferers. Of these there is none superior to Parmenter's Vegetable Pills. Their operation is so gentle and effective, and the most delicate can use them.

Rhodes Scholarship for Alberta

In the will of the late Mr. Cecil Rhodes provision was made for a scholarship for each province then in existence in the Dominion and one scholarship for the North West Territories. Up to the present time the trustees of the will have not been prevailed upon to provide for a scholarship or each of the two new provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan and in the mean time arrangements have been made where by Rhodes scholars are selected by Alberta and Saskatchewan for alternate years. The selection for the year 1911 is to be made by Alberta and the trustees asked the election should be completed by the first day of January, 1911.

Elected scholars will begin residence at Oxford in October of the year for which they are elected. Each scholarship is tenable for three years, and is the value of 800 pounds, per annum. Candidates must be British subjects and unmarried. They must have passed their nineteenth, but not have passed their twenty-fifth birthday, on October 1st. of the year for which they are elected. An elected scholar must have reached at least the end of the his sophomore or second year's work at some recognized degree-granting University or college of Canada. Child Labor no longer Permitted in Alberta

Edmonton, Dec. 6.—Child labor in the province of Alberta, save where it is necessary for the maintenance of the child himself, will no longer be possible under Attorney General Mitchell's act, which finally passed the legislature yesterday afternoon, under the name of the Trunancy and Compulsory School Attendance Act.

Under this act, not only the small child will not be allowed to labor, but must attend school between the ages of 8 and 13 for the full school term of a year save where prevented by sickness or other unavoidable cause, or where the child receives efficient instruction elsewhere.

Many have been surprised to learn there really exists in the province, child labor to a large extent. Not only this but according to the results of investigation made by R. B. Chadwick, superintendent of neglected children for the province there are many children who are not receiving proper school education.

One hundred men worked all night in attempt to save the big bridge of the Grand Trunk Pacific at Edwistie 65 mile west of Edmonton, which has been gradually sinking into the ground. The bridge is constructed over muskeg and through tons and tons of gravel was dumped under its massive beams since its foundations began to sag, it is improbable that it will be saved.
